VOICES FROM THE FIELD

We wanted to hear from experts across different fields, reflecting the everyday realities of cultural professionals, carers and people living with dementia, as well as the different contexts represented across the consortium. The interviews focused on specific topics we have been exploring for the curriculum and e-learning platform.

These conversations bring together practical insights and real-world experiences, helping to contextualise the content that will be available on the platform.

WHAT WE HAVE ACHIEVED SO FAR

Dementia, Culture and Participation: Five Perspectives from the Memorable Project

Partners from the five Memorable countries have shared articles presenting the key findings of their national work on dementia and cultural participation. Together, the articles explore how cultural activities can support well-being, inclusion, identity, communication and social connection for people living with dementia, while also highlighting challenges such as accessibility, awareness, training and institutional cooperation.

The Memorable consortium is currently developing the content for its E-learning Platform

The Memorable consortium is developing an e-learning platform for cultural professionals, structured around five modules covering dementia awareness, inclusive participation, communication, supportive environments and institutional change. Designed for museums, galleries and cultural venues, the platform will be tested with end-users by the end of the year to refine content and improve the learning experience.
